Delight as parking plans are driven off agenda

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS were this week enjoying the taste of victory after the council put up its hands and admitted defeat on proposals to introduce pay and display parking in high streets across the borough.

Cllr Bliss said: "We have always said that the options set out in the strategy were subject to consultation, and that we would listen to public opinion before introducing any changes. We have listened and will continue to do so."

Peter Wallace, secretary of Folkestone & Hythe Labour Party, who has opposed the plans, said: "This is a major victory and we're delighted the council have listened at last. It will be a huge relief to shops and their customers."

A decision is still to be made about other streets in the district. Local traders have campaigned against the introduction of more pay and display areas arguing it would put off shoppers coming into the districts towns.

FOOTBALL

CLUB CHAIRMAN SHIFT

FOLKESTONE Invicta's chairman Lynn Woods has stepped down - but vowed to stay with the club as a director.

Mr Woods, who took over the reins in February 2010, will look to focus on the "facilities development and business planning agenda".

A statement from the club said: "Mark Jenner and Jim Pellatt will jointly fill the role of club chairman, manage the club's affairs, and lead the club until the end of the season. Responsibilities will be reviewed at that point with a new management committee being formed prior to the start of the new season. In the meantime it is business as usual. The club's finances remain sound."

The club suffered a blow on the pitch on Saturday with a 0-1 defeat at the hands of basement club Whyteleafe.

COUNCIL

Have your say on district councillors' expenses payments

IT'S time for you to have a say on what allowances and expenses you think should be paid to district councillors.

People are being invited to give their views to the Independent Remuneration Panel which makes recommendations to Shepway District Council on what it thinks councillors should be allowed to claim.

The four-strong panel, made up of local residents, was appointed in December.

Chairman Chris Harman said the panel's task was to gather information and evidence so it could make recommendations to the council of levels of allowances and expenses.

"Allowances fall into two categories - a basic allowance made to every councillor and a special responsibility allowance paid to councillors who have additional responsibilities that are greater than those reflected in the basic allowance," he said.

Shepway District Council is made up of 46 councillors who undertake a wide range of roles and receive financial allowances in accordance with a Members' Allowances Scheme which sets out the payments to be made for each role. Anyone who would like to make their views known to the panel on the subject of allowances can write to Lee Jones, Democratic Services, Civic Centre, Castle Hill Avenue, Folkestone, Kent CT 20 2QY or email committee@shepway.gov.uk. Comments need to be submitted by Friday March 30 to be considered by the panel.

Council chiefs question data

SHEPWAY council and business chiefs have thrown doubt on data quoted by the BBC about business closures in the past two years.

The BBC claimed 1,000 businesses closed, but council chiefs said this was "highly unlikely" as there had been a resurgence of start-ups.

FILM

Harry Hill guest stars in spoof Third Man flick at seaside film festival

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

BIG-COLLARED Kent comic Harry Hill has become one of the nation's favourite funnymen thanks to TV shows like TV Burp and You've Been Framed – but if you go to Margate you can see him as you've never seen him before.

The former William Harvey Hospital doctor, who grew up in Staplehurst, has as a cameo in a Third Man spoof movie which has been entered in Margate's comedy short film festival.

He made a appearance in a friend's film which has made the shortlist at this year's annual 2 Days Laughter Short Film Competition.

Beeping Bush Productions is once again bringing the sound of laughter back to the British seaside with its popular contest.

The team behind the successful 2 Days Later Short Horror Film Competition are setting their sights once again on making audiences scream with laughter, for the fifth time.

The festival gives film-makers, comedians and writers the chance to shine with their own five-minute comedy short put together with just 48 production hours and on a minimal budget.

Some 300 people made 40 films, and 20 have made the shortlist. In all 15 were from Kent, and 12 of those have been shortlisted.

Each film crew is given a list of items from which they had to include three in their mini-epics. The list was a mouse, rubber glove, wedding dress, an unusual sport, a current political event and the phrase: "I'm too tired to do that again!"

More than 350 entry forms were downloaded this year and films have come in from Cornwall to California.

Harry Hill makes a guest appearance in THE Thora HIRD Man; an anarchic comedy by the Whitstable film-making team of Nick Wilty and Maxine Pearson about the underground supply of fake lavender.

Nick said: "Harry has been a friend of mine for 20 years, and knew I entered last year. He was round my home and watched my last entry when he asked if he could be in the new one, which I immediately agreed.

"He loved it, and it would be nice if we could expand it to about half an hour and put it on the film festival circuit.

"I would love to make a British feature film.

"I asked Harry if he wanted me to change his name, but he wanted to be known as him.

"Also in the film are Shane Attwooll, one of the stars of Julian Fellowes' new Titanic TV series which will be on in April; plus Nick Wilton, the market inspector in EastEnders and the nude man in the Specsavers ad with Gordon Ramsey; plus Mark Arden who was in London's Burning and the 'bet he drinks Carling black label' ads a few years ago.

"They all live in Whitstable and wanted to help me make my little film for the festival after the fun that was had doing it last year."

Festival organiser Mick Etherton said: "It's going to be great free night out at the theatre for all, and a rare opportunity for comedians, film-makers and the public to come together and see how a live audience will react to their own films in a supportive and relaxed atmosphere."

■ The shortlisted films are being shown at the Theatre Royal, Margate, on Saturday, March 31. Tickets are free, but must be booked at www.2dayslaughter.co.uk.

Budget is an 'outrageous assault on middle class pensioners' says furious Saga chief

THE chief of Saga has launched no-holds-barred attack on Chancellor George Osborne's Budget.

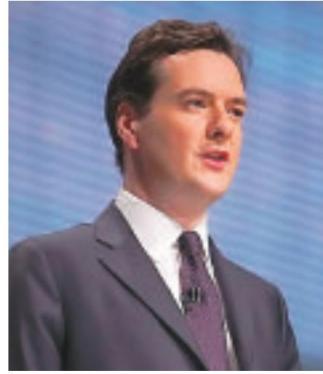

Speaking after the Mr Osborne presented his budget in the Commons, Dr Ros Altmann said she could not believe what she was hearing.

The director-general of Sangate-based Saga, which provides services for older people, said: "This is an outrageous assault on decent middle-class pensioners."

She said the very rich and very poorest pensioners have escaped, but those on middle ground have been hit hard.

Dr Altmann said: "This Budget contains an enormous stealth tax for older people. Over the next five years, pensioners with an income of between £10,000-24,000 will be paying an extra £3 billion in tax while richer pensioners are left unaffected."

"Because in this economy many younger people borrowed far too much and the banks got into trouble, the Government seems to believe it is right and fair to take money away from those who did do something to look after themselves, and use it to bail out younger borrowers and banks."

She added: "There is nothing in this Budget for savers, there is nothing to improve the annuity market, nothing to appease the damage of quantitative easing and nothing to support ISA changes and shelter older people's money in cash. This Budget is terrible news for pensioners."

"It is good to hear we will be able to harness the power of pension funds to improve UK infrastructure, but in short, this Budget is another shocking example of the Government's attack on poorer and older people."

"It is dramatically unfair."

She said credit easing should be scrapped and replaced with a system that fast-tracks money to small businesses, adding: "We should end the gilt-buying spree that has such dangerous consequences for our pension system and use any new money to set up a fund to lend or underwrite lending to improve growth and jobs prospects."

"Using any newly created money to underpin direct small company lending, bypassing the banks, would be far more effective than credit easing which still relies wholly on the banks to lend at decent rates."

NEWS IN BRIEF

► New job for drug boats

TWO drug smugglers' boats, which were confiscated through the Proceeds of Crime Act, will be presented by the police to Kent Search and Rescue on Sunday.

The rigid dinghies will be handed over at a training day at the Hop Farm, Paddock Wood.

Five men were sentenced to a total of 44 years behind bars after they were caught smuggling £1.5 million of cocaine from France onto Hythe Beach.

► Injured dolphin beached

A BADLY injured dolphin had to be put down on Thursday after it was found on the shore at Westbrook Beach in Margate.

Experts tried to rescue the mammal, which is believed to have been caught up in a fishing net, but it was in such a poor physical state it could not be saved. The British Divers Marine Life Rescue team took the dolphin to the Zoological Society of London to carry out a post-mortem to investigate the circumstances that led to its beaching.

► Oil theft lorry warning

POLICE are warning people living in rural areas to be on the look out for specially adapted vehicles being used to help steal heating oil.

More than 20 thefts of the fuel have been reported in the area around Ashford in the last few months, with two reported last week.

The vans have large containers in the rear and are often kitted out with pumping equipment.

Det Sgt Bill Thornton said: "The size of the pumps means that for several hundred litres of heating oil to be taken, a van would have to be parked and pumping for over half an hour."

OLYMPICS

As anticipation grows, here are 324 million reasons to love the Games

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

THE countdown has well and truly started for the London 2012 Games, with just four months to go until the eyes of the world fall on the South East.

Torchbearers and the final street-by-street details of where the iconic flame will travel have been announced and communities are being invited to welcome the torch on its relay through the county.

But aside from the pomp and ceremony the Olympics and Paralympics will undoubtedly bring to Kent – what other impact will the Games have and what legacy will they leave?

According to tourism body Visit Kent and County Hall chiefs, around £324 million. That's the figure Kent County Council and the tourism board are anticipating to gain in tourism alone.

A KCC report, discussed at a meeting this week, also revealed that businesses, including construction firms, media agencies and landscapers, had won 243 first tier contracts to deliver services during the Games – this makes up 23 per cent of all contracts in the South East.

And according to the head of the culture and sports group at KCC, Chris Hespe, the majority are small and medium-sized enterprises.

"This is putting the foundations in place to grow companies and have a long-lasting affect," he said. "All areas of Kent have seen companies benefit from these contracts."

Town hall chiefs were quick to stress it was the long-lasting legacy that was important.

Mr Hespe said: "This is the greatest show on Earth – it's the equivalent of having a G20 summit, two FA cups and a Wimbledon every day for two weeks in London."

"And this is all just nine-and-a-half minutes

ALIGHT: The Torch will spend three days here from Ebbsfleet, which gives us great opportunities, but also immense challenges.

"Work that has taken place over the last seven years since the announcement the Games were coming to London has looked to create a long-lasting legacy."

KCC has already been named as a Beacon Authority – one of only five in the UK – for its work securing a legacy by increasing participation in sport, regenerating communities, increasing participation in cultural and volunteering activities and engaging with young people.

Kent School Games, established in 2008 as the largest school sport competition in the UK and Europe, is expected to involve more than 30,000 pupils in 2012.

Kent is also officially a host county to the Paralympic Games after successfully securing the contract to accommodate the Paralympic road cycling event at Brands Hatch.

Six nations will also be training here in the run up to the Games – Australia, Belarus, Ukraine, Nepal, Slovenia and Papua New Guinea.

Mr Hespe said the focus had now turned from the legacy to getting ready for "Games time", adding: "This includes dressing up Kent, the welcome and making sure there is a real buzz."

But while the Games is expected to have a positive impact on the county, challenges, such as transport, have been acknowledged.

Mr Hespe said a "resilience plan" had been prepared to make sure the area can cope with the influx of visitors, the increase in traffic and the security and public safety implications.

Significant challenges include the potential congestion on major roads and at Ebbsfleet Station; car parking requirements at North West Kent and around other train stations; the implications of the Olympic Route Network on Kent through which east London roads could be taken out of action at short notice on a temporary basis; some airspace restrictions; and the likelihood of illegal camp sites being established.

But aside from the expected pressure on the transport system, Kent is gearing up for the exciting spectacle.

Celebrations are being planned for the overnight stopover of the torch in Dover and Maidstone, on July 18 and 19 respectively.

The ticketed events will be free and are expected to attract thousands of people.

■ Go to www.kentnews.co.uk for details of every county street the torch will visit.

NEWS IN BRIEF

➡ Parking fees abandoned

CONTROVERSIAL pay and display parking restrictions will not be introduced in Shepway town centres after residents voted against the plans in a referendum.

Some 4,000 people also put their names to a petition against the proposal.

The decision means street parking will continue to be free in high streets in New Romney, Hythe, Sandgate, and Sandgate Road and Tontine Street in Folkestone.

➡ Hospital's royal opening

THE Countess of Wessex has officially cut the opening ribbon at the Tunbridge Wells Hospital in Pembury.

Sophie Wessex visited the women's and children's department during the event on Thursday, and also met staff, parents and babies on the neonatal ward.

Her visit marked the official opening of the state-of-the-art hospital which began to treat patients last year.

➡ Jail after heroin death

TWO men have been sentenced after the body of Jed Turner, 34 was discovered in a garden in St Teresa's Close, Ashford, in March, 2011. Ben Phillips, 33, of Smarden, was jailed for four years and eight months for manslaughter by gross negligence, possession of controlled drugs, and perverting the course of justice. John Allen, 58, of Kennington, got a 20-week suspended sentence for perverting the course of justice.

TORCH BEARERS

Pair are ready to carry the flame

CHOSEN: Lana-Emily Foyle and David Stedall

Kent, at the other end of the age scale, is David Stedall from Ramsgate. Mr Stedall, who will be 70 three days before he carries the torch, has had a lifelong involvement in athletics.

He was a member of both the Rochester and Kent County Athletic boards, serving in various posts.

He also spent time in China after an earthquake in 2008 helping to give children in a refugee camp English classes.

Mr Stedall first saw an Olympic flame which the president of Rochester Athletics club had carried at the 1948 London Games.

He said: "He had a torch in his living room, and all those years ago, I held it. From then on, it was my dream to be able to carry the torch and now I can, in my own country for the London Olympics."

He will be running the St Lawrence leg in Thanet on July 19.

knew something was wrong."

The young runner, who at one time was ranked fifth in the national triathlon rankings, had a hole in her heart closed by surgeons at St Thomas' Hospital in London.

After her operation Lana took up athletics and pole-vaulting. Later this month she is off to Malta, training with Ashford Athletics Club.

Another torch bearer from

The keen sportswoman underwent major heart surgery in 2010 after collapsing at a national triathlon event.

THE fishing industry in Whitstable is the subject of a free lecture at the University of Greenwich Medway campus.

A pair of the university's academics will be presenting what they are calling People, Plaice and Chips: Marine Fishing and Coastal Communities along the English Channel.

Its influence in France will also be discussed.

Dr Tim Acott, principal lecturer in environmental geography will be joined by research fellow Dr Julie Urquhart.

They are also heading a £4 million project, called the Geography of Inshore Fishing and Sustainability, exploring the social, cultural and economic importance of marine fishing for the development of sustainable coastal communities.

Dr Acott said: "Many coastal communities have links to fishing that span generations – it is a way of life that goes beyond the means to earning a living. Fishing's influence spills over onto land to create a particular identity and sense of place."

"Many people enjoy the spectacle of fishing while on holiday, the bright boats, the atmosphere of a real fishing place and the heritage taking us back to simpler times when villages and towns grew up on the back of fishing."

He added: "We will be focusing on the social and cultural importance of the marine fishing industry to English and French coastal communities."

The lecture is on March 28 at 6.30pm in the Pembroke Building, email science-public-lectures@gre.ac.uk to attend.

ENTERTAINMENT*Britpop lives as big names to play summer festivals*By Joe Bill

joe.bill@archant.co.uk

THERE will be a distinctly retro feel to the major music events taking place across Kent this summer, after a string of big names from the early 1990s were confirmed for a major one-day event in Thanet.

James, the Inspiral Carpets, Echo and the Bunnymen, Space, and Cast, have all been confirmed for the Sound Island Festival at Quex Park, Birchington on July 28.

They will perform on a big-ticket Saturday line-up, with the more contemporary likes of Olly Murs and Rizzle Kicks performing on the Sunday.

James were pioneers of the indie scene of the late 1980s and early 1990s, crossing over into the mainstream with a string of hits such as Come Home, Sit Down, Sound, and Say Something.

After taking a break from live performances, the group played at Hyde Park last year, supporting The Killers.

Lead singer Tim Booth appeared at the Hop Farm Festival in Paddock Wood last year, while Echo and the Bunnymen were headliners at Lounge on the Farm, in Canterbury.

And indie favourites The Charlatans were this week confirmed as headliners at Lounge, with rumours of talks to secure another major name for the fast-rising event. Other acts confirmed for the Canterbury event include Emeli Sande, The Wombats, and Goldie.

Meanwhile, speculation continues to surround this year's Hop Farm Festival.

Organiser and music mogul

SIT DOWN AND LISTEN:
James will be playing at this year's Sound Island Festival

Vince Power originally announced he was to confirm headliners for the three-day event at the end of November. Almost six months on, not one group has yet to be confirmed.

Last year Prince, Morrissey and The Eagles headlined the event which was hailed as one of the summer's highlights.

Much rides on its shoulders this year. With no Glastonbury Festival, as organisers take a break, it is seen as a key opportunity for the likes of the Hop Farm to emerge as a major player on the scene.

Dates for the festival have been confirmed as June 29, 30 and July 1.

TOP MARKS: Bibek Mukherjee meets the Duchess of Cornwall at Clarence House after the TV final

TELEVISION

Kent stars are winners and losers in the final of University Challenge

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

KENT could stake a claim for being TV's brainiest county after having three contestants in the final of University Challenge.

One Kent student was on the winning team, and two were on the beaten side in the show screened on BBC Two this week.

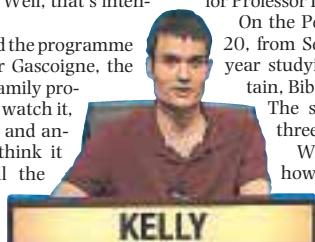

The University of Manchester took the title for the third time in seven years, beating Pembroke College, Cambridge by 180-135, their lowest score of the series.

The team received their trophy from the Duchess of Cornwall, at a special presentation ceremony held at Clarence House to mark the 50th anniversary of the show.

The Duchess described herself as the show's "greatest fan" and spent time chatting with both teams, as did quiz host Jeremy Paxman.

When Camilla told Newsnight host Paxman: "I thought the questions were unbelievably difficult", it was a typically acid-tongued sarcastic reply from the broadcaster: "Well, that's intentional, you know."

Admitting she has watched the programme from its outset with Bamber Gascoigne, the Duchess said: "I think it's a family programme. I think all ages can watch it, everybody can join together and answer the questions, and I think it also shows how wonderful the youth are today and how many clever people there are out there."

TOUGH LUCK: Ed Bankes and Bibek Mukherjee

"They give young people a very good name."

On Manchester's victorious team, chosen from the 120 entrants, was PhD history student Luke Kelly, 24, from Ashford. He was joined by Tristan Burke, Michael McKenna, and Paul Joyce.

A spokesman for the university said: "Luke is the quiet one on the team and had a great time celebrating the win. We are all proud of them."

The team's remarkable achievement will be recognised with a celebration at the university in April, hosted by the president and vice chancellor Professor Dame Nancy Rothwell.

On the Pembroke team were Ed Bankes, 20, from Sevenoaks, who is in his second year studying English and the team captain, Bibek Mukherjee, from Whitstable. The show was watched by around three million people.

When the Duchess asked Bibek how he was selected, he said: "Oh, this is quite funny, I think. We flipped a coin and I managed to get lucky."

AGRICULTURE*Farmers praise scientists' work to tackle sheep virus

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

LEADING figures in the agricultural industry have visited the laboratory where scientists have been tackling the Schmallenberg virus – the disease carried by midges from the Continent, which is killing unborn lambs.

And among the delegation was a leading Romney Marsh sheep farmer.

The virus has hit farms across the county and South East. Taking its name from the German town in which it was first detected, it is believed to have been carried across the Channel by midges. The virus affects ewes, with their lambs being either deformed or stillborn. Some farms reported 10 to 20 per cent of their lambs being affected.

The condition poses no risk to human health, nor can it be spread among infected animals.

As of earlier this week, the latest figures show Kent remains the worst hit in the country by the outbreak. The Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency listed that 32 sheep and three cows had tested positive.

A delegation from the National Farmers' Union visited the leading UK research body – the Institute for Animal Health at Pirbright in Surrey – studying livestock diseases to hear of progress in understanding the virus.

Howard Bates is the NFU South East livestock board chairman, and went on the tour. From his sheep farm on Romney Marsh, he said: "We were delighted to hear how UK scientists are working with their European colleagues and there has been rapid progress.

"There is a diagnostic test to detect the virus in midges and animals and only this week, IAH received news that colleagues elsewhere have developed a test that may be suitable for detection of antibodies in the blood of animals."

Also on the tour was NFU president Peter Kendall and NFU vice president Adam Quinney.

They met experts at the facility which is undertaking research to see whether the virus can replicate within midges and to understand the insects' ability to pass it on. The institute will use data, including weather measurements and maps, to understand how the spread.

Mr Kendall said: "This invaluable work is another example of how dependant we are on the scientific community."

'Heritage crime robs us of our history' warns top cop

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A SENIOR Kent police officer seconded to English Heritage said he is determined to make a difference and protect Britain's history for generations to come.

A nationwide survey by the organisation found attacks on historic buildings are rising with metal being a prime target due to the high price for scrap.

The survey shows a worrying rate of damage across Kent – in fact one in five people with a responsibility for a heritage building in the county has suffered some sort of crime.

Of those, metal thefts make up more than three per cent.

The councils in Dover and Canterbury, both rich in heritage buildings, have signed a memorandum of understanding which details responsibilities between English Heritage, Kent Police and the Crown Prosecution Service.

Kent police chief inspector Mark Harrison is national policing advisor at English Heritage.

He said: "Heritage crime robs us of our history. Beautiful buildings are scarred forever, places we treasure and enjoy lose their identity and appeal.

"Evidence about our past is lost and tourism suffers, not to mention the burden on owners to repair and put things right.

"We owe it to future generations to take action against the minority whose actions are causing irreversible damage."

He said local history societies, amenity groups, neighbourhood watch and residents associations should all do their

ENVIRONMENT

Pet owners cause a stink by leaving poo bags on beaches

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A RAIL company with the worst record for bags of dog mess left on a beach is appealing to animal owners to take their mess to the nearest bin.

Shakespeare Beach, near Dover, was found to have 28 bags of dog poo during a national survey last September, which saw 172 volunteers at work on 14 county beaches.

By a quirk of geography and line layout, Network Rail is in charge of the beach.

It turns out thoughtless dog owners are bagging the mess, but then can't be bothered to put it in a bin, thinking it's perfectly acceptable to leave it on the sand for others to come across.

The Marine Conservation Society surveyed just how bad the situation is around the UK.

In all, their volunteers picked up a staggering 2,177 bags weighing almost 8.3 tonnes.

Just under 300kg in 78 bags was found in Kent, with Shakespeare being the worst offender.

Tying for 'best' offender with one bag each was East Cliff, Grenham Bay and Palm Bay.

Only Northumberland, Suffolk, West Sussex, and Cornwall were worse than Kent.

The society found the number of poo bags left on UK beaches rose 11 per cent between 2010 and 2011, with Scotland recording the biggest increase at 71 per cent.

MCS beachwatch officer, Lauren Davis, said: "We hope our findings will encourage dog own-

BAG IT: Pet owners have been asked to clean up ers to take the bag off the beach and bin it in one of the many receptacles provided for the job.

"Dog poo is a source of high levels of bacteria and can lead to reduced water quality, and poses a human health risk."

Network Rail said: "The railway runs between the cliffs and sea through a site of special scientific interest. Part of the land alongside the track is open to the public and popular with dog walkers.

"We would urge members of the public to always clear up after their animals and dispose of any waste correctly so this stretch of coastline remains a pleasant place for everyone to enjoy."

Dover District Council added: "We would like to remind dog owners to pick up after their pets, and to dispose of the waste in a responsible way."

Almost 13,000 items of rubbish were picked up in Kent.

No third Dungeness power station will be 'calamitous'

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

AS ONE era of electricity generation comes to a close with the recent demolition of Richborough's cooling towers, there are calls to revive a new age of power at Dungeness (pictured).

Both Shepway and Ashford councils are lobbying for a third nuclear plant to be built at the site.

Dungeness A has been decommissioned, and the B reactor will stop producing power in 2018.

Leader of Ashford council Peter Wood said: "The decommissioning of Dungeness B, coupled with the Government's reluctance to approve development of Dungeness C, will have a profound, some claim calamitous impact, not only upon Romney Marsh, but also upon much of Shepway and Ashford.

"That extends beyond the obvious loss of employment opportunities and embraces much of the social structure of the marsh and beyond."

"Schools, nurseries, public transport, health provision, local shops and businesses, and clubs, will all bear the brunt of this loss."

Dungeness was not named as one of the first eight sites in the country where the Government is allowing new nuclear stations to be built.

It was kept off the list because of fears about the impact a new Dungeness C plant would have on the unique habitat in the area.

Shepway MP Damian Collins has consistently backed the idea of a new power station.

He said: "There is very strong support for it from residents on Romney Marsh. The Government have made clear the door is still open for Dungeness C. We have to satisfy the planners in regard to special habitat regulations at Dungeness and the power station would have to be built with minimum impact on those protected areas, but I believe that could be done."

The Government has said if a power generating company was interested in building a new plant it would allow the planning process to go through to resolve any environmental issues at the site.

The MP also dismissed criticism from environmental campaigners that the main beneficiaries of the nuclear build programme will be foreign companies.

He said: "People who work at Dungeness B now already work for a French company. We are looking at investment that will build vital infrastructure and generate electricity onshore."

"It will train a lot of people as a result of that investment. The reason many of these companies building stations are French is because they have continued to invest in their nuclear industry and we have done nothing since the 1980s."

For sale: One seaside ice-cream man's 'dream lifestyle portfolio'

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

AS a shopkeeper moving on, you might flog off the stock, sell the building and dispose of other assets, but Steve Graham is doing it differently – he is selling what he calls a "lifestyle portfolio".

It was his dream to set up an ice-cream shop in Whitstable catering for beach visitors.

But after the tragic railway death of his wife in January last year, Steve has decided to let someone else live their dream – he is selling absolutely everything in one package for £675,000.

That way, anyone looking for a typically English seaside shop in a thriving tourism town can just move in and open up with a home nearby and even a valuable and sought after beach hut thrown in. Oh, and maybe a dinghy, too.

He said: "I am really selling someone's dream. It was my dream to do this, and now I have had my enjoyment, it is time to move on and let someone else have the chance."

For sale is Sundae Sundae in Harbour Street. The ice-cream parlour is also packed with the sort of things that makes any day at the beach.

And in Terrys Lane is a three-bedroom fisherman's cottage, and of course that 1950s beach hut. All the properties are close to each other.

The marine engineer admits he is a serial entrepreneur and loves to set up new businesses, make them a success, and then move on.

His wife and business partner Jan died less than two years ago, and although her passing is not a major reason for moving on, it does have an influence.

Steve, 57, said: "I like the idea of a 'lifestyle portfolio', it has everything someone needs to move in and start trading the very next day.

"I would say this is ideal for someone looking to escape the pressures of the city and feel they want a quieter pace of life by the sea. Things are more laid back down here and a little slower.

"I appreciate nice things in life and I think if I

ONE SCOOP OR TWO?: Steve Graham's moving on can give someone the chance – someone who's maybe just got to that time in their life, maybe got a young family, they're thinking: 'Do I really need to live in London now?'"

Steve said he is also keen to sell the shop as a going concern and not just the chance for someone to cash in.

"I see it as someone buying a lifestyle. Whitstable is in my heart and I love the town."

He is marketing it as the Whitstable Dream and among his customers have been famous locals like Harry Hill and actress Fay Ripley, who may or may not have tried his bizarre sprout-flavoured ice-cream.

TWO Kent parishes have been selected as trailblazers in a groundbreaking national scheme that will see communities shape future development in their neighbourhoods.

Parish councils in Worth, near Sandwich, and Faversham Creek, have each been given £20,000 to trial new rights which will put power in people's hands as part of the Government's Big Society agenda.

Kent's chosen two, which were among 233 selected, will draw up neighbourhood plans to complement their district councils' core strategies – in this case those drawn up by Dover District Council and Swale Borough Council.

It will mean, for example, if a housing development is planned for an area by the borough council, the community will have a say on the specific design to ensure it fits in with the rest of the neighbourhood.

The type and design of the development can be granted automatic planning permission under the new powers, through a Neighbourhood Development Order. Referendums will be held on whether to approve neighbourhood plans.

If the trial is successful, planning powers will be rolled out to communities across the country as part of the Localism Bill.

Communities minister Bob Neill, Tory MP for Bromley and Chislehurst, said the scheme had attracted huge interest.

"The large number of communities jumping at the chance to trial these new powers demonstrates the enthusiasm people have for this local approach to planning," he said.

Senior planner at Protect Kent Brian Lloyd said it would allow people to help with designs of any development in the parish.

"These neighbourhood plans won't change the core strategies, but will help shape them. It will also help communities move forward with specific projects," he said.

Concerns have been raised by some developers that the scheme was a Nimby's charter, but Mr Lloyd said the new powers would hold no authority over a district's core strategy.

"They wouldn't be able to use these powers to stop development," he said.

A spokesman for the British Property Federation supported Mr Lloyd's views.

"I don't think Nimbyism will be a problem. The neighbourhood plan has to work with the council's core strategy."

HERITAGE

How you can make your own story a part of Kent's history

By Marijke Cox

marjke.cox@archant.co.uk

KENT is home to some of the most celebrated history in the UK – from the bravery of the men who fought in the Battle of Britain over the Dover Straits, to the Peasants' Revolt more than 500 years earlier.

Now there is a chance for residents to inject their own piece of history into Kent's colourful heritage with fascinating stories and photographs from the past.

To mark the upcoming launch of the new state-of-the-art History and Library Centre in Maidstone, members of the public are being invited to reveal their own tales and pictures, whether it be a wartime family photo or poignant memories of a historical event, as part of the What Kent Means to Me Project.

KoS has teamed up with Kent County Council to encourage readers to get involved.

And the most interesting could feature as part of this newspaper's popular Kent Remembered series, as well as being part of the first display at the new History and Library Centre, which opens its doors at 9am on Monday, April 23.

A KCC spokeswoman said the focus was "making your history part of Kent's history".

"Local residents are invited to scan and email their photographs to historyandlibrarycentre@kent.gov.uk and show what Kent means to them," she said.

"It might be a photo of family, a building or place, anything that represents how you feel about the county. Alternatively, you can bring along your photo to your local library who will scan in the photo for you."

The centre will boast a library and archives facility which will replace the Centre for Kentish Studies, East Kent Archives, County Central at Springfield and St Faith's libraries.

"Kent has a wealth of documents, photographs, maps and records about the county's history, but to make sure they survive for future generations, they need to be kept in carefully controlled conditions," said the KCC spokeswoman.

"The new centre has been purpose built to protect and display many more archives than has ever been available to the public."

"There will be around 14km of historic material relating to Kent, dating back to 699AD and it will be the place to come for anyone interested in local history."

"There will also a community history area, where visitors will be able to explore their local and family history. There will be a large space for displays and events as well as a research room."

The centre will also boast a library with 40,000 books, IT services, and meeting rooms.

Send pictures and stories to historyandlibrarycentre@kent.gov.uk.

KENT REMEMBERED

Tracking the golden age of steam travel

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A NEW book which takes readers on a train journey across Kent during the golden age of steam railways has just been published.

Rex Conway's Southern Steam Journey Volume Two uses the author's archive of black and white photographs to recreate travelling from Victoria Station in London, down to Folkestone, Ramsgate and Ashford via Medway and Swale.

It tells of a time when the railways reached places where stations have now been closed for almost 60 years.

Mr Conway, who is an archivist and historian, has a collection of more than 65,000 images of the days of steam trains, having taken a total of 25,000 himself from the 1950s onwards.

The book, published by The History Press, includes photographs of locomotives on the line heading for Ashford and includes details of a recreated trip around its railway sheds and workings.

The Romney, Hythe and Dymchurch small steam railway is featured, as is the South Eastern and Chatham Railway which ran a service from Victoria to Paris, starting at 11am.

This rolling stock was upgraded when Southern Railway came into operation and Pullman cars introduced as a more 'exclusive' sort of passenger was catered for. A ferry-boat called the Canterbury was built and took the carriages across the Channel.

DIFFERENT ERA: The book looks at a time when steam trains were the only way to travel

The branch line to Lydd, which is no longer in use by passenger trains, is also featured, with a picture of the now abandoned town station.

The imaginary journey runs to Ashford across the Marsh.

Mr Conway writes: "Ashford apart from having a large locomotive works... is also a major junction.

"The line from Brighton which we have just arrived on is one of three main lines that arrive from the south – the others being the Folkestone and Dover lines. The other main line is from Canterbury, while going west from Ashford is a direct line to Tonbridge.

"The final junction is to Maidstone totalling five lines meeting in Ashford, a railway enthusiast's dream."

Despite the cutbacks to services over the past decades all five of these routes still run – the direct service to Brighton being reintroduced seven years ago.

This historic route first opened on February 13, 1851.

Recommended for closure by Dr Richard Beeching in 1963, the route has survived various attempts to axe services completely, and stations remained unmodernised and gas-lit well into the 1970s.

The wide cuts made across the network resulted in their instigator becoming one of the most unpopular figures in the history of public transport.

Dr Beeching's brief as chairman of the British Transport Commission was simple: "Make the railways pay."

British Rail was losing £140m a year when he took over the commission and his solution, announced on March 27, 1963, was straightforward – massive cuts.

The Conservative government welcomed the report, but thousands of people – many in remote rural areas – were horrified they would lose their local branch lines. Opposition from the pressure groups failed and during the 1960s "Beeching's Axe" fell on 2,128 stations and more than 67,000 British Rail jobs.

The book documents the highpoint of the railways – before the cuts – and the rail line between Folkestone and Dover also receives attention.

Mr Conway states: "We are running by the sea again, looking gloriously blue in the summer sunshine, but not for long though, as our train will soon be into the Abbotscleffe Tunnel which is more than a mile long. When we emerge into daylight again it will be the White Cliffs on our left as we slow for our stop at Dover."

OPINION

Day we knew it was just a game

Reporter Joe Bill recounts finding himself just yards away from the terrible scene of footballer Fabrice Muamba suffering a heart attack

THE term 'everything has been put into perspective' is overused. But never has it been more fitting than at 6pm on Saturday, March 17, 2012.

Midway through the lambasting of another refereeing decision, Tottenham fans turned to face Fabrice Muamba as he slumped to the floor.

The realisation of the situation was almost immediate. With his hands crumpled under his body, 36,000 people knew there was something very wrong with the Bolton number six.

Just 20 yards from our seats, Spurs Luka Modric could be seen frantically gesturing to the dugouts. Bolton physios and Tottenham medics raced to the player's side and tried to place him in the recovery position.

As stretcher men and paramedics raced across the pitch, the panic of the situation became clear and the stadium fell silent. A sickening whimper from the crowd went up as it became clear paramedics were pumping away at Muamba's chest trying to bring the player back to life.

Superstars slumped to the turf, while parents turned their children's faces away.

The stricken player's midfield partner Nigel Reo-Coker walked over to the Spurs fans just in front of me with tears streaming down his face.

Two more medics appeared carrying a defibrillator.

As Muamba's body kicked up from the electric pulse, the silence broke and a deafening roar went up; it was like a goal had been scored, in the sense it was spontaneous, there was no-one conducting this choir.

The shouts of "come on, come on!" were as upsetting as the scene in front on me.

It was pure desperation of the 36,000 people urging Muamba to move, to be okay, to give those around him a sign there was still hope.

As the minutes ticked by silence drew in again before the cries of Muamba's name started in the Bolton section. This was echoed around the stadium until all were singing his name, urging him to stay alive.

It was the most surreal and uplifting feeling knowing everyone wanted the same thing, but at the same time it was the most horrific thing anyone had seen on a football pitch.

The medics continued to work on Muamba as he was loaded onto the stretcher and carried away. Almost 10 minutes had passed since he had hit the floor. They were some of the longest minutes in my life.

Fifteen minutes later it was announced the game had been abandoned. The faces of some of those burly men walking out of White Hart Lane said all you needed to know about how they were feeling.

In the street people gathered around cars for radio news, but nothing was conclusive.

Fans are often criticised for their behaviour, their chants and their blinkered view of football, but for me that was the day football changed.

It is sad it has taken a horrible incident like this to get people to wake up, but I have no doubt the game will be a little more clear now. Money, transfers, the England captaincy, which footballer is having an affair... none of it means anything when someone's life is on the line.

I don't like the phrase 'football family', but from the outpouring of support from social networking sites, other football teams and the wider world, you can tell people finally realised it is indeed 'just a game'.

I hope that day goes down in history for the right reasons. I know I will never be able to go to see Tottenham Hotspur without looking at the piece of turf where Muamba fell and thinking, just thinking.

Economy set to get Olympic gold medal

NOW the final details of the Olympic Torch's route through the county have been revealed, we know where to line up to watch it fly past.

All the lucky torchbearers have been told where they are to start and finish. Let's hope they will bring a few family and friends along to spend money in the shops and cafes along the course.

The financial benefit of the Olympics is hard to ignore. Kent County Council estimates it will bring in around £324m to help boost the local economy.

Visit Kent hopes it will act as a showcase to highlight all our best attractions to foreign visitors, not just this year but in years to come.

It would be good to see some of the cash being used to support sport as well.

Motorway madness?

THE Government could choose a stretch of the M20 to be one of the first in the country to get an 80mph speed limit.

Selecting one of Kent's busiest motorway sections should be a good test. It's often hard to get up to the current speed limit during rush hour, especially around the maze of junctions near Maidstone.

Town in need of leadership

URGENT action is needed in light of figures that show Shepway had the third worst rate of business failures anywhere in the country.

According to research carried out by Experian for the BBC, 1,300 businesses in Shepway have closed in the last two years.

This means the area's businesses have declined by 7.8 per cent year-on-year, falling from 8,253 in 2010, to 6,951 in 2012. Only Hounslow in west London and Knowsley, near Liverpool, have seen greater rates of decline. The research looked at evidence of growth, or otherwise, in every local authority area in England.

Keeping fingers crossed and merely hoping for a new nuclear reactor at Dungeness or leaving the De Haan Trust to regenerate Folkestone is no longer good enough.

This Shepway-wide crisis needs leadership and new ideas, neither of which have been displayed by our local political leaders.

It needs a major push for green jobs and support for existing local business, as well as measures to encourage and nurture start-ups.

Instead, we have the proposed parking charges which will have completely the opposite impact.

Martin Whybrow, Shepway Green Party

Don't get hung up on words

IN HIS patronising letter (KoS, March 18), it took Geoffrey Clark quite a while to get to his real reason for writing – he wants a referendum on 'gay marriage'.

Why? We don't need one.

If two people of the same sex want to be able to commit to a 'marriage', why should anyone be opposed to it?

I cannot understand why some people are getting so exercised by this issue.

The fact the word 'marriage' has been traditionally used to describe the union of a man and a woman is irrelevant.

Language is a dynamic thing, changing and evolving; and the development to move beyond the term 'civil partnership' to describe as marriage two people of the same sex entering into a legally recognised union, is part of that process.

If we didn't accept that language moves with the times we might still be using the word 'gay' to describe a man as a 'dashing gay blade'.

It's now never used in that context and probably never will be again, so I would say to those critics of this proposal, stop getting so hung up on a word.

I'm now in my 41st year of 'marriage' and if people of the same sex want to join me in making that commitment, good luck to them. I hope the day comes soon when they can do so.

Christopher Hudson-Gool, Maidstone

Where should line be drawn?

MARRIAGE dates back to historical times, pre-dating modern religion, and during this time the definition and parameters of marriage have changed several times.

Who exactly is Mr Clark to demand this never changes again?

I also have concern over Mr Clark's definition of marriage.

Procreation is not the only reason for marriage; many people procreate without being married or even knowing the name of the other parent.

And some couples get married with no intention of having children, or being physically unable to do so due to health or age reasons.

Are these marriages an aberration? What if a homosexual couple want to raise children? If one out of two is okay, then surely homosexual couples who want to raise children should be permitted.

Or should heterosexual couples be subject to fertility tests and be legally obliged to have procreated within a certain time span in order to be eligible for marriage?

Should marriages be dissolved after the woman experiences the menopause or a hysterectomy, or if for any reason they are unable to produce any further children?

I despair that Mr Clark feels that equality is detrimental to Britain's people and wonder how he feels he can speak as a representative of people he clearly feels to be inferior with the majority of his words.

Drew J Smith, Gillingham

Site closure is waste of time

I AM writing to voice my opposition to the proposed closure of the Richborough Household Waste Site. I was present at the first public meeting of the Richborough Recycling Action Group.

At the meeting it was determined a campaign to reverse a decision to close the facility will be mounted, an issue that Kent County Council were deciding on this week.

The closure of the site will impact on Sandwich, Deal, large parts of Thanet and the surrounding villages.

The closure of any site, given that there are relatively few, will both reduce the chances of meeting recycling targets and encourage fly-tipping.

The Richborough location serves a wide catchment area and there are no neighbours who are affected in terms of traffic noise, smell, vermin, etc.

Closing Richborough will increase queuing in other centres to the detriment of residents there.

Rather than seeking to close recycling facilities, KCC should be working to improve the performance and accessibility of recycling facilities throughout the county.

Steve Wood, Sandwich

On the road to rack and ruin

DAVID Cameron is reported as considering options such as road pricing and privatisation, claiming that our roads "need more private investment".

They don't. Britain's drivers pay around £50 billion a year in taxes, and under a fifth gets spent on road repairs.

A surplus of something like £400bn has been paid since 1997, so morally investment has been paid for several times in advance. Around £10bn would be enough to tackle the disgrace of potholes, but for some reason we can't invest enough in decent roads – whereas we can build roads for other developed countries.

A recent report on the Highways Agency suggested commercialising it, and revealed eye-watering perks for management in return for making even more money out of the public.

Our roads are a vital asset and they should stay in public hands – and receive proper investment. Say 'No' to this highway robbery.

Brian Mooney, Fair Deal for the Motorist Campaign

General welcome for Osborne's recognition of a thriving region

Budget 2012

By Nick Amesnick.ames@archant.co.uk

CHANCELLOR George Osborne's recognition of the need for a prosperous South East and his stated commitment to increasing Britain's exports have been largely applauded by Kent's business community.

However, some analysts have said that he needs to do more to cut back barriers to growth and allow investment in the country's infrastructure if business is to prosper.

Osborne put himself forward as the champion of British business in a Budget that he said would help the country "earn its way in the world".

Setting out a series of business-support policies – which he said should help to double exports to £1 trillion a year – he said: "Do we have the national resolve to say 'No, we will not be left behind – we want to be out in front'?"

Among these were plans to slash corporation tax in a bid to improve economic growth.

Osborne said that he would cut the amount of tax that firms paid on profits from 26 per cent to 24 per cent – double the reduction previously announced.

The cut will come into effect in April and the intention is to drop the rate further, to just 22 pence in the pound by the end of his Government's term in office.

The Chancellor said exports had declined over the last 10 years and that Britain exported more to Ireland than to Brazil, China, Russia and India combined.

Andrew Aves, development manager of the Kent and Medway branch of the Federation Of Small Businesses, said: "Exports is something we are very keen to encourage, as are other bodies

'Misguided, dangerous' statement is slammed

THE Campaign to Protect Rural England (CPRE) has condemned the Chancellor's statement on planning as "misguided and dangerous", following Wednesday's Budget.

The group also expressed deep concerns about the Government's transport strategy and the suggestion that it was "going soft" on airport expansion in the South East – which the group has consistently opposed.

Adam Royle, spokesman for CPRE, said: "From the Chancellor's words we fear the longstanding protection for the wider countryside will be abandoned. That would mean that 55 per cent of English countryside, including many locally-loved green spaces, could be placed at the mercy of developers."

Ralph Smyth, senior transport campaigner at CPRE, said: "This is not a case of 'jobs versus the countryside' or 'runways versus rural England', but about tackling narrow-minded and short-sighted vested interests. It is a further loss of the rural tranquillity that remains."

is welcome, the Chancellor has not done enough to free business from the burdens and barriers that are holding economic growth back.

"Businesses dearly want the opportunity to invest, create and build, but George Osborne must go much further if he wants to fire up the engines of the economy."

"There was a bold move on corporation tax, but in the bigger picture this is still not far enough or fast enough."

"Smaller firms will welcome moves to tax them on the amount of cash passing through the business rather than the methods used for larger companies."

"We would have also liked to see the National Insurance holiday, which has had such little take-up in the north of the country, offered to business in the South East."

"We await with interest the Government's review of airport capacity in the South East. We recognise the urgent need to expand capacity, but that must go hand in hand with substantial investment in other infrastructure to support that expansion."

The Chancellor said the independent Office For Budget Responsibility now expected economic growth to be slightly higher, at 0.8 per cent this year, up from 0.7 per cent in its autumn forecasts.

However, next year, it is projecting 2 per cent growth, slightly weaker than the 2.1 per cent it expected in November.

The Chancellor stressed that he would stick to the Government's austerity programme, which he said had enabled the Treasury to borrow at the cheapest rates in its history.

Announcing the OBR's latest forecasts for the public finances, he said he now expected this year's deficit to be £126 billion, just £1bn lower than expected in the autumn, after official figures published earlier on Wednesday revealed a shortfall of more than £15bn in February.

BIG TALK: Chancellor George Osborne put himself forward as the champion of British business during his statement such as the Invicta Chamber of Commerce and Kent County Council.

"We in Kent are in an ideal position to do so, with our close proximity to the Continent."

"Likewise good to hear was Mr Osborne's recognition of the need for the South East to be successful. That was music to our ears, as the Government just cannot assume the area will look after itself."

Roger Broad, director of the Institute of Directors South, said: "While any tax reduction

Loan Guarantee Scheme aims to give the smaller companies a lift

A PLAN to help small and medium-sized business to obtain cash has been put into place by Government.

Chancellor George Osborne said Barclays, Lloyds Banking Group, Santander UK and Royal Bank of Scotland had all signed up to the Government's National Loan Guarantee Scheme (NLGS), which will provide cheaper lending to businesses with a turnover of up to £50 million.

The discounted loans are being made available because the Government is to guarantee £20 billion of the banks' own borrowing – usually from other financial institutions – thereby allowing the lenders to borrow more cheaply than they normally do.

The banks then pass on this cheaper funding to SMEs in the form of lower interest rates.

Lloyds said that as well as allowing it to offer customers cheaper loans, the scheme had the potential to "rekindle confidence, stimulate demand and encourage investment".

Barclays and RBS are expected to be the biggest users of the scheme to issue £1.5bn each of Government-backed bonds to provide the cheap loans to small businesses.

Fuel campaigners hit out at no duty change

CAMPAGNERS calling for a cut in fuel duty say they are disappointed at the Budget ignoring their demands.

They had called on the Government to cut duty, saying it would create jobs and boost the economy – but no appropriate action was taken.

Folkestone-based Peter Carroll, founder of FairFuelUK, is a former haulage-company boss and Liberal Democrat district councillor. He said: "Diesel is at its highest price ever recorded and this failure to act is a devastating blow to families and businesses."

"Poll after poll has set out that this is the number-one priority for the UK. Millions of people and thousands of businesses will feel ignored."

"We gave the Government evidence that a cut in fuel duty would not cost it any revenue overall. Our supporters will be astonished that the Government has cut the 50p rate because 'it damages the economy' but will not tackle fuel duty when it's crippling the economy."

CROSS-CHANNEL*Market gains for ferry firm

DFDS Seaways, the Dover-France ferry operator, has announced strong performance in 2011 for both its freight and passenger businesses, leading to increased market share on the Channel for the seventh consecutive year.

Despite fierce competition, in 2011 the number of freight units on the service rose 4.2 per cent.

DFDS Seaways is now only one of two English Channel ferry operators remaining from the six-strong marketplace in 2003.

In 2011, the freight business saw more than 467,000 units on the service. Market share of the freight business has also increased above the budgeted levels year on year.

Meanwhile, despite a decrease in overall car traffic through the Port of Dover in 2011, passenger business has experienced increases in revenue and volume for the seventh consecutive year.

Since 2007, the car market through Dover has shrunk by 5 per cent, but in that time DFDS Seaways has seen a 50 per cent rise in the number of cars carried on its ships.

The success of the business in 2011 has enabled DFDS to join together with the French company, LD Lines, to provide a new Channel service between Dover and Calais. The service launched on February 17, 2012.

Overall, DFDS turnover and profit grew by 18 per cent in 2011. Growth occurred in the Channel, the Baltic Sea, and on some major North Sea routes. The group's turnover grew to a record £1.354 billion. Pre-tax profit was £86 million.

Chris Newey, passenger director for the English Channel operation, pictured above, said: "2011 was a challenging year with the economy still in a state of uncertainty, which in turn created continued pressure on the travel sector."

"The landscape for the ferry industry has changed significantly since 2003. Against this backdrop, we are extremely proud to have achieved an increase in revenue, market share and volume of sales for the seventh year in a row."

"These results are a credit to the hard work and dedication of employees, as well as loyalty from our customers."

Eurostar celebrates profit in first year going it alone

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

EUROSTAR has reported "solid progress" over the past year, with continued growth in both passenger numbers and overall sales revenues.

Following the transformation of the business from a partnership of three railways to a single, unified corporate entity on September 1, 2010, the business reports a preliminary, unaudited net profit of £20.8 million in its first full year of operation as a stand-alone company.

Total sales revenue in 2011 grew by 6 per cent from £760m to £803m, with particularly strong growth in the second half of the year.

On a like-for-like basis, after adjusting the 2010 results for the volcanic-ash-cloud impact, sales revenues have grown by 10 per cent and showed positive growth in each quarter throughout 2011.

Passenger numbers for the year rose by 2 per cent from 9.5m to 9.7m, with an increased use by those travelling for leisure, but business traveller numbers were slightly down.

Through 2011, the number of international passengers originating outside the EU was up 20 per cent, the most important non-European markets being Latin America, the United States and South-East Asia.

The company says that delivery of a net profit is a strong result for Eurostar given the high infrastructure costs incurred as an international rail operator, including access to the high-speed rail network and Channel Tunnel.

Nicolas Petrovic, chief executive of Eurostar, said: "Eurostar continues to make good progress against a difficult economic backdrop and ongoing uncertainty across Europe.

"We have invested in upgrading our service and product and this has resulted in strong growth in sales revenues and passenger numbers. Having completed our first financial year as a stand-alone business and delivered a strong performance, we are now well positioned to build on this momentum."

The company also says significant progress has been made towards its £700m fleet investment programme.

At the same time, the complete overhaul and redesign of the existing fleet of trains is progressing well. When the new and refurbished sets enter service, the Eurostar fleet will be equipped with advanced Wi-Fi and on-board 'info-tainment', which will include real-time travel and destination information as well as interactive entertainment including music and news-feeds.

Petrovic said: "The continued investment has seen customers returning to us again and again. This delivered one of our busiest weekends on record during the wedding of Prince William to Kate Middleton last year, reinforcing our position as the operator of choice between the UK and near-continental Europe.

"As we look to the year ahead, the combination of the London 2012 Olympic Games and the Queen's Diamond Jubilee will make the capital one of the hottest destinations in the world this year.

"As a proud sponsor of the Games, we are looking forward to playing an integral role as the key link between London and near continental Europe."

MOBILITY

Centre focus on making your life easier at home

CANTERBURY Mobility Centre provides independent living to anyone experiencing difficulties coping in the home or being unable to get out and about for shopping or pleasure activities.

Restricted mobility often causes problems in being able to shop and for this reason it offers free demonstrations in the home.

All customers purchasing mobility scooters and power chairs are assessed for their needs and capabilities and the company has its own workshop where servicing and repairs are carried out by an experienced engineer.

The business is based on understanding a customer's individual needs and being able to supply the right solution.

Whether the item purchased is something as small as a jar-opener or as large as an eight-mile-an-hour scooter, experience has taught the company that each customer will vary in their personal requirement.

Sparshatts takes title for second time

A COMMITMENT to customer service has earned Mercedes-Benz truck and van dealer Sparshatts of Kent the manufacturer's coveted award for a franchise – and the chance to do the traditional Maori Haka war-dance with a legendary All Black rugby star.

Sparshatts beat 20 other dealers nationwide to take the prestigious 2012 Mercedes-Benz Commercial Vehicle Dealer Of The Year title.

And guest of honour Sean Fitzpatrick, legendary former captain of the New Zealand All Blacks rugby union team, presented the trophy at a ceremony in Gaggenau, Germany.

Andrew Sparshatt said: "He certainly lived the dream of being an All Black, which is what so many people from New Zealand aspire to. He had us all doing a version of the Haka, which was fun."

The award was the company's second Dealer Of The Year success, having won the same title in 1986, two years after it was introduced.

With headquarters in Sittingbourne and other dealerships in Ashford, Dartford and Tunbridge Wells, Sparshatts of Kent sells and supports the award-winning range of Mercedes-Benz commercial vehicles, as well as Fuso Canter light trucks.

Training, courses and careers

'Join up for the sake of economy'

COUNCILS, businesses, schools and colleges must join forces to train unemployed people to fill thousands of vacant jobs to get the economy moving again, says a South East Skills Summit.

Shortages of IT specialists, chefs, HGV drivers and care workers are holding back individuals and the economy, so tackling skills gaps should be top priority for business, education and local government said summit chairman Martin Tett.

He said: "We need to ensure our people have the best chances when it comes to applying for work – whether this is highly specialist qualifications or the basic life and attitude skills so many employers are looking for. Too many young people are unemployed and we are determined to avoid a lost generation by working together."

Employment minister Chris Grayling urged councils and businesses to join the Government's Work Programme. He said the eight-week placements were crucial to give young unemployed people experience that would help them compete for jobs. He also highlighted councils' role in identifying 'troubled families' who needed help to overcome years of unemployment.

Young apprentice Anna Davies told the Summit how her job at Kent County Council was giving her skills to kick start her career.

Other speakers included the leader of KCC Cllr Paul Carter.

New college skills shop to sell itself

CANTERBURY College has launched the Canterbury Retail Skills Shop and the Canterbury Spa.

Last month's opening of Canterbury Retail Skills Shop means the college has become the only college in the area to be awarded National Skills Academy for Retail status.

This allows the college to deliver a new portfolio of courses specifically designed for those working in the retail sector.

These courses include apprenticeships; customer service retail management courses; and the new Mary Portas guide to successful retailing.

And the college's new training facility the Canterbury Spa features all the things you would expect to find in a high quality hotel or high street spa including a steam room, sauna, spa pool, and a dry flotation tank.

Canterbury College principal Alison Clarke said: "The new Skills Shop responds to national priorities and local training needs, while the Canterbury Spa is perhaps the most impressive commercial training facility for hair and beauty industries in the further education sector."

Building bosses told to train staff for safety test

CONSTRUCTION companies in Kent are being urged to upskill to create a safer and more competent workforce.

The call to action comes with the roll out of the new health, safety and environment test from CITB-ConstructionSkills, the Industry Training Board and Sector Skills Council for construction, which comes into place from April 1.

It follows a Health and Safety Executive (HSE) clampdown on construction site safety. Between February 20 and March 16 HSE inspectors have been visiting Kent construction sites as part of its inspection initiative aimed at reducing death and injury in the construction sector.

Anyone taking the health, safety and environment test after April 1 will need to familiarise themselves with the updated question bank and the new features of the test in order to give themselves the best chance of completing it.

Officials say the test includes a number of new elements while retaining core fundamentals, including:

- A refreshed and updated question bank including the new universal hazard symbols;
- An increase in the number of questions on respiratory risks and the hazards they can pose;
- Knowledge questions on the environment;
- Behavioural case studies which assess how a candidate responds to highlight safe working practices on site.

New revision information is available, including the training video Setting Out, which highlights the required behaviours of both the site management and the workers.

The behavioural case studies are based on the principles set out in the film and test what a construction worker might face in their real life jobs, and their reactions to that situation. The training video will be available to see free of charge.

Kevin Fear, head of health and safety strategy at CITB-ConstructionSkills said: "Setting Out and the behavioural case studies are the most important features of the new test. While construction workers need good awareness of the health, safety and environmental issues that affect construction sites, further improvements to the industry's accident record will only be made once we have workers responding appropriately to the conditions that they will find on site."

Braden Connolly of CITB-ConstructionSkills said: "It is absolutely crucial that anyone taking the test gets up to speed with the new elements, and ensures they are as well prepared for the test as they can be."

"We pride ourselves on making the test accessible to anyone who wants to take it, via a range of methods including voice overs, readers, sign, and foreign language interpreters but this can only work if candidates get themselves fully familiar with the test's content."

For information about the new test, and revision materials, visit www.cskills.org/hse-revision.

Schools & education

Beauty show pupils made up with masterclass

TWO of Kent's top make-up artists visited the Zone, Folkestone Academy's hair and beauty salon, to provide a make-up masterclass.

Gemma Parnell from Make-up by Gem, and Lucy Moat from Maid-up Makeup Artistry, spent the day with the 15 winners of the academy's annual hair and beauty show, demonstrating the techniques and products required for photographic make-up and essential tricks of the trade to be a successful in the industry.

Students completed hair and make-up looks on each other from their chosen era ranging from 40s through to 70s and were then taken to Dover Transport Museum to gain experience on a location photoshoot.

Waiting at the museum were top photographers, Alan and Thomas Langley and the team from Dover Design Photography ready to photograph the students' work and create a poster image as a representation of the era.

Students became part of the location team for the day, working with the photographers, stylist and models to shoot their work in front of backdrops and cars from the era.

Working with industry professionals gave the students a real insight into the role of hair and make-up artists in the world of fashion and advertising photography.

The show winners learnt what it takes to produce both a creative and technically accurate visual representation, working to a brief with professional photographers and make-up artists to produce strong images for their portfolio.

Royal duties for college's Frontliners at education awards bash

MIDKENT College students found themselves in the presence of royalty when they attended a prestigious awards ceremony at London's Guildhall.

Princess Anne and Prince Edward were both in attendance for a celebration banquet to mark the Queen's Anniversary Prizes for Higher and Further Education.

Accompanied by members of staff from the Medway Campus, the 26 students from the Frontline Training course – known as Frontliners – welcomed guests to the event and helped ensure everything ran smoothly.

MidKent College won a Queen's Anniversary Prize for its Frontline Training courses in 1998 and has been invited back to help run the biennial celebration ever since.

Beverley Noble, head of the services to people faculty, said: "This is the biggest event on the Frontliners' calendar and it takes several months to prepare for, but they took it in their stride.

"They put all the skills they've learned on the course into action and really came up trumps on the evening. Their professionalism and customer service was outstanding, and the organisers of the event were delighted.

"Hopefully we'll be invited back again next time."

MidKent College's Frontline Training courses are designed to give students the opportunity to experience customer service delivery first hand while providing local businesses and charities with help running events.

Parliamentary honour for tsetse fly researchers

THE achievements of staff and students from the University of Greenwich at Medway have been celebrated at a special reception in Parliament.

They joined the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills Vince Cable, ministers, MPs and members of the House of Lords at an exhibition and reception at the Palace of Westminster.

The VIPs viewed pioneering work from the university's Natural Resources Institute on the Medway campus at Chatham Maritime.

University researchers there have developed an innovative way of tackling problems caused by tsetse fly, eliminating the killer disease of sleeping sickness in some parts of Africa. This research has been named as one of the top 10 discoveries in any UK university in the last 60 years.

The Secretary of State, his shadow Chuka Umunna MP, and Paul Blomfield MP, Secretary of the All Party Parliamentary Universities Group, all made speeches, speaking about the contribution of universities like Greenwich to national and international education, research and enterprise.

Environmental science student Robert Gunn was one of six Greenwich students invited to attend the event. "It was a huge thrill to be asked, and a really good experience," said Robert, who lives in Strood.

"It was a great opportunity to talk to a whole range of people. The Secretary of State said universities like ours have contributed a lot to the national education system and that our research is really vital."

THE INTERVIEW

Fuse Medway Festival

Charge of the arts brigade

ONE of the more recent events to have swung its way on to the county's leisure calendar is Fuse Medway Festival.

Taking place every June for the last seven years, the festival has developed its appeal to performance and arts fans around Kent, and this year, with the help of a new face, the show could become yet bigger.

Lelia Greci has taken over as artistic director of Fuse Festival, bearing an impressive CV that features work on the Manchester International Festival as well as the Festival For Culture Shock as part of the Commonwealth Games.

Greci, who grew up in Le Mans, France, is keen to put her stamp on the festivities and make sure that interest in Fuse grows significantly.

She said: "I would like it to be bigger and better. The idea is to embed the festival locally but inform it internationally."

"I am French, so I am always interested in what is going on in continental Europe. I am also interested in what is going on in England with outdoor arts."

"Fuse has to be strong locally, getting local people involved, but I also want to bring in the most exciting outdoor art from elsewhere in the UK and continental Europe."

"At the moment, Fuse is still in the early days – the audience is mainly from the area."

"A lot of people will travel from around Kent to Medway for the day, but ultimately, as the festival grows, the idea is to attract people from a further distance, especially as the tourism infrastructure develops in Medway as well."

"Fuse will grow with Medway, and Medway will grow with Fuse."

Greci arrived in Medway shortly before last year's festival after a stint at Crawley Borough Council coordinating the leisure activities at its theatres and open spaces.

And the performance fanatic has taken over the reins to secure funding for this year's event, something that's very much on schedule.

She said: "It is going very well. We have sent our application bids to Arts Council England, who are one of our two main funders.

"The funding from Medway Council has been

Lelia Greci talks to Joe Bill about blending some of Europe's finest outdoor acts with the emerging talent of Kent's largest conurbation

ALL SMILES: Lelia Greci is using her experience of prestigious events to develop Fuse Medway Festival agreed as well, so that's 60 per cent of our funding confirmed now."

The Fuse team will also commission £10,000 to three new acts looking to take the festival by storm this year, known as the Spark Commissions.

"We have a programme of three local art commissions and they have now been short-listed," said Greci.

"Every year we commission three locally-based artists or companies to create new work about Medway, relevant to its community. They have to be interactive and outdoor for everyone."

"We have received a good number of ideas and have invited a few of them to come and talk to us about them."

"The idea is to nurture creative talent and give them opportunities to develop the practices in Medway. There are also three universities in the towns. We want to provide working opportunities to those emerging artists and students who have chosen to study here, too."

Fuse was initially created seven years ago as a ticketed indoor arts festival that was spread across a whole month, something from which the new artistic director is continuing to move away.

She said: "Until last year the format of the festival was over three weeks and all across Medway, but I think it spread the resources too thinly."

"Now it is over just three days of a weekend and across three of the towns, so it is much more focused."

"It is easier to communicate with the audience and it is much more impactful, and that is what we want to build upon."

"All the activities for Fuse are to be free. That is the precept of the festival: to make it as accessible as possible. Open to everybody in the county."

The team has also commissioned the Central School Of Beat And Drama in London to produce site-specific, family-friendly shows using creative performers from the Medway towns.

This year's show will also feature the No Fit State Circus extravaganza, a well-known big-top performance company which will use young people from the area in its show.

"Young people from Medway take part in circus workshops every week, put on by Medway Council," said Greci. "Those young people will develop confidence and skills and will perform in the circus show this summer."

The theme of any festival is an important issue, as the director explained: "This year the theme will be the river. The parade on the Friday will have a strong river theme and involve large projects from the universities."

But most important, says Greci, is the fact that it is free and open to everyone.

"It is a fantastic opportunity to engage in the arts for the very first time for some people. They are people who wouldn't take a financial risk on these events but can come along and see it without paying out. If it is outdoor and free, it removes all the barriers."

• Fuse Medway Festival runs from Friday to Sunday, June 15-17. As a lower-key precursor to the main event, Lighting The Fuse is scheduled for Monday to Thursday, June 11-14. Visit www.fusefestival.org.uk for details.

Venue fills city's latest void but lacks any spark of individuality

FOR many town and city centres, the departure of a business from the high street creates either an eyesore or an opportunity for a charity emporium to set up shop. In parts of Canterbury, however, the departure of a shop-front is almost inevitably followed by the arrival of a new restaurant.

And since The Marlowe Theatre emerged from its chrysalis in all its swanky new splendour, the Westgate Towers end of the main thoroughfare is falling over itself to offer a tasty treat to the hungry theatre-goer or tourist.

Those restaurants able to meet the no-doubt-enormous rental costs for such a prime area tend to be the big chains. Cue the latest arrival: Chimichanga (it's Spanish for 'thingymajig', apparently). A spin-off from the Prezzo stable.

Sited in what was once the city's post office, it is a modern affair that delivers a slice of Mexican grub through a walkway that sails perilously close to looking like you're stepping into a gaudy homage to an Indiana Jones film.

Inside, however, it conforms to the expected look and feel of today's modern chain restaurants. There's wooden floors, soft lighting, high ceilings spacious, well-designed table layout... think Prezzo but with a Latin American twist.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Of course, the décor is no guarantee of top food quality and, just like its big-chain parent and rivals, it's fair to say you enter with your sights lowered accordingly when it comes to what targets your taste buds might hit.

Everything is tasty, yet unremarkable.

Starters of Portobello mushrooms in batter (£4.95) are juicy – but the batter heavy and soulless; the calamari (£5.95) a little chewy; and the crab cakes (£5.50) light and tasty but lacking any sort of zing.

The main meals are more adventurous affairs. Fajitas arrive with tiger prawns (£14.50) sizzling and with an array of sauces and a selection of tortillas, while the smoky barbecue chicken from the chargrill section (£11.95) makes up in taste what it lacks in good looks – the chicken arrives almost freeze-dried in a slice of cheese suffocating a mushroom, with the obligatory side-serving of fries.

But let's not get all sniffy. If you want gourmet grub, then the scale and colourful menus will quickly inform you this isn't for you.

However, if you want something a bit different to the all-too-regular strains of some sort of Italian cooking in Canterbury, then Chimichanga fills a void. It has a bustle about it and the staff are efficient and friendly.

Yet while there are some positives, there is much it could do to improve, too.

On the date of the review, for example, in the men's toilets all the handles on the taps were broken, making it impossible to wash your hands – inexcusable in a restaurant.

What's more, you just cry out for a little individuality – as with all these chains – rather than simply following the national stencil.

Good but no big fat Cuban cigar quite yet.

BBC chef Martin cooks up a treat at Bluewater

JAMES Martin, host of BBC's Saturday Kitchen, appeared at Bluewater shopping centre this week as part of a preview to the upcoming Good Food Show, which is set to be held in April.

The celebrity chef performed live cooking demonstrations and tastings and met fans at the new Glow venue.

He appeared alongside wine expert Olly Smith and Kent's very own TV chef Mark Sargeant.

The BBC Good Food Show, which offers stalls, cooking tips and utensils for foodie fans, will be at Bluewater for 2012; in previous years it has appeared at Birmingham's NEC.

Martin said: "It was nice to be able to get down here, do some demonstrations and really get a feel for the place ahead of the show."

"It is more intimate here – at the NEC most of the chefs don't get to go around and see the stalls because it is such a large venue. We are going to have top chefs from all over the country coming down to talk about their techniques and tips up on the stage."

"We will be bringing down a minaturised version of the Saturday Kitchen as well for two of the days, so it should be great."

The show takes place from Thursday to Monday, April 12-15, and will include celebrity chef appearances as well as book signings.

"There is always a bit of friendly rivalry between the chefs. It's a task to get Gino D'Acampo to keep to his time limit," said Martin.

We continue to offer outstanding modern & traditional Spanish cooking that has won acclaim from the national press.

Our menus' follow the seasons, using the best local producers & Spanish importers. With a fantastic selection of wines & tapas, we have something for everyone.

EATING OUT

It's Lion, the Red Lion.. Bond night in the village

THE Red Lion at Hernhill is a picturesque 14th-century pub in a small village near the historic town of Faversham.

Surrounded in history, the pub dates back to the 1300s and still contains many original features. The pub offers a selection of traditional English food alongside the frequently-changing seasonal specials.

Facilities include an upstairs restaurant, available for dining or large functions, a front patio overlooking the church and village green and a well-established pub garden with many historical features and a large play area for children.

There is a traditional Sunday roast every week, steak night on Wednesday and Thursday and pensioners' special every Wednesday lunchtime.

For Sunday lunch you can have one course for £10.50, two courses for £13.50 and three courses for £15.50.

You can choose from a selection of meats, including pork, lamb, and beef, from midday to 8pm. On Saturday, March 31, there will be the James Bond 50th-anniversary charity bash featuring a stylish casino night. The evening starts at 7pm, with card tables followed by quality buffet band Coco and a funk disco from 9.30pm. Tickets are priced at £25 and numbers are limited to 80.

BEAUTIFUL SETTING:
Chives on the Green at Broome Park has made a name for itself with an excellent atmosphere and innovative cooking ideas

Chives at Broome Park is ready for green summer

THIS family-run operation, which has been going for more than 20 years, has grown a reputation for wonderful, innovative food teamed with excellent service and event-planning, allowing clients to relax and enjoy the atmosphere.

In 2011 the group, which owned Waltham Court Hotel until 2004, was invited to take over the entire catering operation at Broome Park and has not looked back.

It revelled in the prospect of having a venue for weddings and events as well as the restaurant and bar while, of course, looking after the golf club and its members.

The team aims to be all things to all men to all guests by having the right people in the right places, bringing experience to the various facilities of Broome Park.

The group believes in putting equal energy into all parts of the business, including the flourishing outside catering arm.

Head chef Graham Green had previously been at the helm of award-winning restaurant The Green Herring in Canberra, Australia, for 20 years before joining the Chives team in 2008.

The Chives restaurant at Broome Park specialises in creating innovative food from local produce using creative chefs.

There is a friendly and efficient service combined with a stunning setting. Just the fact that everything is produced from scratch means that catering for any dietary requirement is never a problem; for example, there is a gluten-free range.

Just some of the events that the team produces include pie-and-pudding night on Tuesdays, followed by a quiz in the Great Hall, and there are set to be many barbecues during the summer months.

The restaurant is open for lunches on Monday to Saturday from midday to 2.30pm and from midday to 3pm on Sundays.

During the evenings the venue is open Monday to Wednesday 6pm-8pm and Thursday to Sunday 6pm-9pm. The team also believes that opening at 6pm allows more families to come in and not have to eat too late.

Acorn Inn... restaurant food at pub prices

THE Acorn Inn is a little pub with a lovely, friendly and comfortable atmosphere.

All the staff are warm and welcoming and offer a great place for a family meal with good food and good prices.

It has been said that The Acorn Inn is one of the best-kept secrets in Thanet because of a few key reasons.

All of the food on the menu is cooked on the premises, on the day, keeping it as fresh and delicious as possible. All of the meats used in the dishes are sourced from the nearby Preston butchers and all of the produce is both fresh and locally sourced.

If you require a special meal for a special occasion that isn't on the menu, then, providing you give the team 24 hours' notice, it will do its best to deliver your request.

The group has just celebrated its third year

There are also main meals available from £4.75 and lunchtime meals from £3.95, meaning The Acorn is affordable for all!

The Sunday roast is very popular, so you will need to book in advance. One course is £7.95, two courses £9.95 and three courses £11.95, with meals served between midday and 4.30pm.

Desserts change regularly because they are all home-made. The restaurant is open at lunchtimes from midday-2.30pm from Tuesday to Saturday and during the evenings from 5.30pm-8.30pm Monday to Thursday.

On Friday and Saturday nights, food is available from 5.30pm-9pm.

Pot simply, The Acorn Inn offers good restaurant food at pub prices.

anniversary at The Acorn Inn.

The pub offers steak nights every Thursday and they have proved to be very successful.

A selection to leave county diners in awe

Gurkha Palace Folkestone

Why here...

An authentic taste of Nepal with regional cuisines. The food of this beautiful country is as diverse as the landscape, so it's no surprise that the menu is vast. Relax and enjoy a meal this Easter.

On the menu...

Excellent food has seen it nominated as best Nepalese restaurant in the country by The Good Food Guide. Highly commended by the Channel Chamber in the best-customer-service category.

CONFIRMED as one of the real UK hotbeds of culinary talent, Kent has more to offer from its wide range of menus than ever before.

The Garden of England fills restaurants and pubs across the county with fresh fruits, locally-sourced produce and meals that cater for almost any requirement.

The choice of dishes for diners in the area is greater than ever before.

Whether it is strictly business with a meal to stimulate the taste buds as well as the conversation, or a relaxed long meal with family and friends, there is always something for everyone.

Here is a selection of excellent venues all offering something different yet with one thing in common – a commitment to culinary excellence and impeccable service.

Many of the county's venues pride themselves on serving top-quality Kentish produce – whether it be locally-caught fish, Romney Marsh lamb, home-produced beef, or the strawberries, cherries, apples and plums from the rolling fields and orchards that make our county so special.

The choice is vast and an à la carte menu is the ideal way to ensure that diners have the chance to experience the lot.

And when it comes to something to wash down the meal – what better than delicious Kentish wines, ales or ciders? They are among the best produced anywhere in Britain and justly famous for their wonderful quality.

So which venue to choose? Here are six of the best...

The Acorn Birchington

Why here...

The Acorn Inn is a friendly, family-run pub in the heart of the seaside village of Birchington-on-Sea. Hosts Peter and Cath offer a warm welcome to a pub that has existed since 1748.

London Beach Tenterden

Why here...

The London Beach offers one of the best à la carte menus in the county. With the menus changing on a regular basis, the London Beach team uses local producers where possible. The sophisticated restaurant has a relaxed ambience, with beautiful panoramic views across the Weald of Kent. It is the ideal venue for fun family gatherings either large or small.

On the menu...

Start your meal with Rye Bay scallops, creamed leeks and truffle dressing followed by roasted breast of pheasant, confit leg, cauliflower puree and terrine of Dauphinoise. Top your meal off with Champagne panacotta with vanilla poached rhubarb. There is something to suit all the family.

World's Wonder Warehorne

Why here...

The World's Wonder sits in a beautiful area of countryside and offers a true rural eating experience.

The pub is just a short walk from Romney Marsh, sitting between Hamstreet and Tenterden.

It has a more modern-looking façade these days, but hiding behind it is a history that reaches back more than a century. A glorious fusion of modern and traditional!

On the menu...

The food is both cooked on the premises and sourced locally, with free-range meat and poultry all supplied by a local farmer.

All dishes are home-made, including the famous steak-and-kidney pie and rabbit-and-bacon pie. Vegetarian options are available.

How to book...

www.atgtickets.com/venue/Leas-Cliff-Hall

X-FACTOR star Cher Lloyd is to take her swagger on the road with the announcement of her first UK tour. A protege of Cheryl Cole, Lloyd finished fourth in the 2010 series of the hit reality show, but, like so many other runners-up, she has gone on to bag a No 1 single and a record deal. Her individual style and outspoken opinions mean Lloyd regularly features in the Press. Her debut single Swagger Jagger went straight to the top of the charts and has picked up more than 50 million views on YouTube. The show will doubtless feature songs from her debut album Sticks & Stones. Tickets are priced at £16.50.

TRY something new this weekend by taking your mum to a How To Be A Woman event hosted by women's guru Goddess Star Monroe. The day is designed to inspire and motivate mums of all ages with lively workshops for confidence tricks and tips and daily glamour secrets for the busy woman.

There are also burlesque movement classes, complimentary pampering from beauty experts, bra-fitting, free hair makeovers, make-up demos, foot detox and massage.

Star said: "The event is the perfect opportunity for mums to indulge and be pampered – it's a day dedicated to their needs."

Tickets are available online.

Mouth artists The Magnets stick together

The Orchard, Dartford

Thursday, April 12, 7.30pm

01322 220 000

www.orchardtheatre.co.uk

DESCRIBED as a six-man sound machine, The Magnets make incredible music using only their mouths.

Heading to The Orchard Theatre next month, their talent is for extraordinary arrangements that radically restyle songs by artists ranging from Elvis Costello to Adele. The group use vocal stunts, cool moves and engaging humour – but absolutely no musical instruments – during their performances.

Highlights of the new show include a sultry version of Lost In Music by Sister Sledge and a mash-up of New Order's Blue Monday, as well as Rhianna's hit single, Only Girl.

Audience members can choose from bands, movies and adverts in the request section, while the latest EP, Human, will be on sale at the show.

Tickets are priced at £17.

Useless stuff The inventions that flopped

Mascalls Gallery, Paddock Wood

01892 839039

www.mascallsgallery.org

AN exhibition at Mascalls Gallery in Paddock Wood will see one of Kent's hottest young artists show off his Warehouse Of Failed Invention. Mark Selby will transform the white cube gallery into an industrial warehouse with a series of rooms and corridors for the visitor to explore.

Within the spaces will be strange and useless objects, including a Hubbard electrometer, a portable sauna and a cat-mew machine.

Later this year the UCA lecturer's work will be on show at Kunsthavnen in Munich. Mascalls has also displayed work by Marc Chagall, Henry Moore and LS Lowry. The exhibition will remain open until Thursday, April 5.

SCHOOL'S OUT

Host of opportunities on your doorstep

SPRING is now here and with it the chance for the family to enjoy the sunshine and the longer daylight hours.

With schools preparing for Easter half-term, days out are one of the best ways of getting everyone together to enjoy the superb countryside that Kent has to offer.

Lambs are traditionally associated with the Easter season and many farms will be putting on special events to show off the latest additions to their flocks.

Around this time of year many gardens open for the season and the newly-blooming flowers will provide a riot of colour to enjoy.

Carpets of flowers are also one of the major attractions of the county's many woods and a stroll under the trees is a great way to welcome in the new season.

Many tourist attractions also open for the season at Easter, so with the huge variety of castles, stately homes and parks in Kent there is never a shortage of places to go.

With Easter eggs one of the great traditions of the season, how better than to walk off that extra chocolate than taking a stroll along the coast?

Beaches are great at this time of year as they are far less crowded than in the forthcoming months.

While the water might not be warm enough for swimming, there are still games to be played on the wide open sands, while rides and fairground attractions will have opened for the first time in seaside towns.

So take the chance to enjoy the county in all its glory as it wakes up to the warmer weather.

With the longer days, evenings are becoming a time for family fun as well, so a meal or even a picnic if the weather is favourable can round off a great day welcoming the joys of spring.

With the promise of summer just over the horizon, the family can take the opportunity to explore some of the sites across the county with which they are not so familiar – they won't be as busy as during the summer months, so everyone can really take the time to appreciate what they have to offer.

KENT ATTRACTIONS

Trains, planes, automobiles... and cathedrals

Hornby Visitor Centre, Margate

Open daily from 10am-5pm
01843 233524

THE Hornby Visitor Centre opened in July 2010 and since then it has seen more than 58,000 visitors. It features rare products from classic model-producer Hornby, including items from the Scalextric, Airfix and Corgi archives. Visitors will be able to see stunning model rail layouts and also try their skills on a superb Scalextric Digital circuit.

This really is every man's dream, and for a limited time only there is also a unique collection of original architectural models of English and European cathedrals by the Oxford model-maker

William Gorringe dating from 1840-1850. The cathedral exhibition, which is predicted to be a big draw, is due to close in late July 2012. The Hornby Visitor Centre also has a retail shop and mini-café, both open to the public. You can get more details about the centre at www.hornby.com/hornby-visitor-centre.

Olympic glories take rural centre stage

Golden duo act the part

Kent Life, Sandling, Maidstone

Saturday, March 31, 6pm
01622 621249
www.kentlife.org.uk

KENT Life is hosting a performance of Chalkfoot's acclaimed new play Running For Glory, based on the film Chariots Of Fire, at its agricultural store in Sandling. The timely play takes a nostalgic look back at the 1924 Paris Olympics as it follows the lives and ambitions of Eric Liddell and Harold Abrahams, two iconic athletes who won gold for Britain.

Running For Glory has been written specially to tour rural venues in Kent and Sussex, and the show's audience is promised free tractor rides to and from the venue. Visitors will also get the opportunity to sit among the museum's fascinating collection of historical Kentish artefacts, some previously unseen by the general public, as they watch the show.

Tickets are priced at £12 (£10 concessions).

The Armada cometh Tudors ready for battle

Penshurst Place, Tonbridge

Saturday and Sunday, March 24-25, midday-4pm
01892 870307; www.penshurstplace.com

LIFE in 1588 just as the Spanish Armada threatens to invade England is being re-created at Penshurst Place.

The household readies itself for the anticipated invasion and a skilled cast of actors and musicians portrays colourful Tudor characters. Visitors can take up arms and join the local militia with a musket and pike drill and will hear how the country prepared for the Armada. There is the opportunity to try on fine Elizabethan-style clothes of the period and see what people would have eaten and drunk.

Chinese skills extravaganza Cirque du Ciel

The Central Theatre, Chatham

Sun and Mon, April 25-26
01634 338338
www.medwayticketslive.co.uk

THE internationally-acclaimed production of ShangHi by Cirque du Ciel returns to the UK by popular demand. With more than 30 skilled performers, the two-hour show combines acrobatics, modern dance, martial arts, original music and many other traditional and contemporary Chinese elements.

Cirque du Ciel's ShangHi features an enchanting storyline, taking visitors on a journey through the mysterious dreams of a little girl as she delves into her fantasies. Routines include Mexican hat-juggling, aerial displays and the famous, death-defying Chinese monkey.

Also, don't miss the brilliant drumming to fascinate audiences of all ages.

HOMES

An open and shutter case for homes

WINDOW shutters are one of the big trends in 2012 – and it's easy to see why.

They make any window a feature and offer an excellent alternative to curtains, bringing both privacy and light control.

So this classic and stylish alternative to blinds looks set to be one of the stars of this year's Great British Home Show 2012 at Glow, Bluewater, with designs to suit almost any home.

And whether you choose a classic or contemporary style, there are practical benefits as well – they are easy to keep clean and during the winter they will certainly help you cut your heating bill.

"Window shutters can transform any room and they give a stylish touch and key feature to your home," said Kevin Addington, of Diamond Shutters.

"They are child-friendly, far more hard-wearing than blinds and they are simple to keep clean – an enormous benefit for those who suffer allergies. Shutters are a contemporary alternative to curtains, offering light and privacy."

Diamond Shutters offers a wide range to suit almost every interior.

"All our window shutters are totally maintenance-free and all our products have a full three-year guarantee for your peace of mind," said Addington.

Sea views as standard with this exclusive development

THREE new-build properties with far-reaching views over the Whitstable coastline have been launched for sale by estate agency Connells.

The exclusive, gated development has been built by Groombridge Properties, which produces executive-style homes using traditional and contemporary materials.

The development is on Joy Lane at Turner's Point, one of the most sought-after residential areas of Whitstable.

Owners are just a short walk from the beach and a short drive from the town centre.

The five/six bedroom properties are individually designed to a high specification and measure about 2,500 sq ft.

Each property has large balconies from which owners can enjoy the panoramic views over the sea, as well as landscaped gardens.

Ian Hatchard, from Connells, said: "We are delighted to be marketing this superb collection of contemporary properties.

"The new homes would suit buyers wanting spacious and attractive living accommodation in a prestigious location."

The homes have been finished to a very high specification with accommodation spaced over three storeys in plots two and three and four storeys in plot one. Features include oak-veneered and inlaid flush doors, timber staircases with glass balustrades, underfloor heating and a heat-recovery extract system to all rooms, providing fresh air without the need to open windows.

"This development is very special and the developer has put a lot of care and thought into the design and feel of each new home. I am sure the properties will be snapped up quickly by buyers wanting a bespoke and exclusive new home."

"We are now registering interest and taking reservations, so anyone interested in finding out more should contact us now," said Hatchard.

The properties are priced at £895,000.

■ For further information about this development or to view the homes, you can phone Connells Canterbury office on 01227 764720 or visit the website at www.connells.co.uk.

CHAPEL PLACE LIMITED

Land Agents

If you are thinking of selling a property which requires renovation or refurbishment and are unsure whether to use a traditional estate agent or to sell via auction, then Chapel Place Limited could provide the answer as we have an extensive database of suitable purchasers looking for suitable projects providing you with a quicker transaction than you would expect from an estate agent whilst achieving a better return than you would expect via auction.

Do you own a freehold commercial building or site that you are contemplating selling? Before instructing an agent to act on your behalf why not contact Chapel Place Limited as on many occasions we have been able to source a purchaser from our database who will pay above market value if they believe it offers development potential.

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

HYUNDAI'S rise to become the world's fourth largest motor vehicle group actually doesn't have the headline power of Apple computing's rebirth and ascension.

But they do have a small thing in common; both have used the 'i' vowel to signal a changed direction, paving the way to new growth.

Apple, of course, added an 'i' to the iMac, iPod, iPhone and now the iPad – all game-changers in the electronics theatre.

Korea's Hyundai, rather cheekily perhaps, adopted 'i' to prefix a new and very different series of mainstream models to replace rather lacklustre predecessors like the Accent and Elantra.

The first arrived some five years ago as the i30 five-door family hatchback. It wasn't quite in the league of an Apple mould-breaker, but it certainly showed Hyundai could now offer more style, quality and driver enjoyment without jettisoning the brand's value standards.

Other 'i' models followed and none have disappointed – the i10 city car has become a best-seller, while the recent i40 addition is a stunning threat to establishment family models such as the Ford Mondeo and Vauxhall Insignia.

The other scary thing for western brands is that while they generally follow a seven-year model replacement strategy Asian marques, including Hyundai, go for five.

So the second generation i30 is now with us, and it's another 'i' jump up the ladder if you like, with sharper styling and an interior far superior in style, design and quality to its worthy predecessor.

It's also closer than ever to the high-quality handling of the Ford Focus, VW Golf and Vauxhall Astra, to the point where Hyundai's famous five-year/unlimited mileage warranty, can clinch the deal in favour of the Korean car.

It's a powerful persuader anyway in current times; a sign of Hyundai's confidence in its products and, for owners who keep a car for three years, it becomes a valuable asset to the resale value, while those who buy a car for life can be confident they are buying something expected to last.

Sensible buyers will also note that all 1.6CRDi diesel manual versions come with Hyundai's Blue Drive eco technologies as standard, offering road tax exempt CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of 97g/km on the lowest output 110PS (109bhp) version, plus pound-stretching economy without compromising on low down power output.

Four main trim levels are offered – Classic, Active, Style and Style Nav – with an entry level 1.4-litre petrol option from £14,495 as well as the diesel (from £16,895) mentioned earlier.

As ever, standard spec is generous, but mid-range Active trim (from £15,595) includes alloys, cruise control, rear parking sensors and Hyundai's new dynamic Flex Steer system, giving the driver the option of three settings for the wheel: Comfort, Normal and Sport.

Is Smart still thinking smart?

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

SMART posed serious questions of all of us when it launched its unique two-seat city car in 2000.

How many of us truly need more than two seats and how much longer can we afford the fuel for that wasted space?

Plus, can you cut a dash with a car that is pretty much a small cube on four wheels?

And the verdict on both is still with the jury.

Of course, despite appearances, the Smart is no longer the same car – a new and fractionally longer second generation version arrived in 2007, and righted several of the wrongs found in its predecessor.

But, since it would be akin to re-inventing the wheel, the Smart's styling is likely to remain a case of wrapping two people with space for some luggage and shopping.

That doesn't stop Smart – a sister brand to Mercedes-Benz – regularly re-packaging the range though, so we have a revised line-up due next month including tasty specials to get would-be customers into showrooms, such as the cool Boxfresh limited edition I've been driving this week.

It's been outfitted in conjunction with the fashion label of the same name, and just 55 will be sold – each has its number displayed on the dashboard – and there will probably be no shortage of takers.

The Boxfresh looks sharp with its sumptuous tan leather seats and other hide trappings inside, while the all-black exterior looks extra mean with 15-inch glossy black alloys courtesy of Merc styling house Brabus.

If that's not your thing then there are other new specials including the black and orange Nightorange, ICE and Pink Passion.

But these don't come cheap; the Boxfresh sells for £11,700, which is a lot more than the ten grand for the normal Passion coupé model with the same 71bhp output from the Smart's standard 1.0 litre petrol engine – there is also a 54bhp diesel from £10,400.

SMART FORTWO 71 PASSION BOXFRESH: £19,500

BRIGHTEST OF SPARKS:

Smart has released new models including the Nightorange, pictured, ICE and Pink Passion, which highlight the model as a perfect city runabout or ideal second family car.

That's the point of such specials though; they give Smart something to shout about and make would-be buyers re-evaluate the little car.

It's not without its faults: it can be noisy; the gearbox can be jerky in full auto mode – outside of town I prefer using manual changes via the stick or steering wheel paddles; and you sometimes feel the door handles will scrape the road on the corners.

But as a cost-effective city runabout or second/third car, the Smart is in a class of its own.

Both occupants have lots of room, sit comfortably high up and have sensible space for weekend luggage, shopping and even a small dog – but forget about golf clubs.

Whenever I drive one, though, I'm asked: "But do you feel safe in it? It's just so small."

Close inspection shows the car is built around a massively strong cage – Smart calls it the Tridion Safety Cell – and the marque made a TV ad once showing a Smart smashed full on by a demolition wrecking ball and then the occupant walking away unharmed.

The advertising standards people would never allow that to be fake so, yes, I do think it's safe.

My advice though is look at the fancy specials and then pick the cheapest petrol model (from £9,200) you will need; the diesel is too heavy and jerky and doesn't offer much better fuel consumption and the cheapest petrol versions are road tax exempt too.

And buy the Smart for economy convenience, and easy parking rather than the driving experience.

It now has competition though from Toyota's provocatively named IQ, which is only slightly longer, carries another adult and a child and feels more like a normal car.

MOTORING NEWS

An invitation from Nissan

NISSAN has shown confidence in its Sunderland plant by committing £125 million to build a new supermini contender there.

Backed also by a £9.3 million Government grant, it will be produced alongside the Qashqai and Juke crossovers and should create 2,000 jobs.

Unveiled in concept form with the name Invitation, the new car should hit showrooms in next year.

Passat ready for rough ride

VOLKSWAGEN has got tough with its Passat estate by creating a high-riding 4x4 model with 'ruggedised' body sections, able to go places standard models can't.

Order books are open for the Passat Alltrack – the car hits showrooms on May 28.

Choice comprises two diesels: a 138bhp 2.0-litre with six-speed manual 'box (£28,475) and a 178bhp with twin-clutch DSG auto/manual (£31,025).

...and Peugeot follows suit?

NOT to be outdone, Peugeot also has a rugged version of its elegant 508 estate available to order now and arriving in May.

But the all-wheel drive of the £33,695 508RXH is more unusual in using the French marque's pioneering diesel-electric hybrid powertrain: a 163bhp 2.0-litre diesel driving the front wheels, paired with a 37bhp electric motor for the rear.

Main Dealer Servicing

Dealers bank on peace of mind

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

AFTER buying a house, buying a car is usually the second biggest investment we make.

To protect that outlay, it is vital the service schedule is kept up to date and repairs carried out promptly and competently.

The best guarantee used to be a full main dealer service history, a reassuring record that everything required for the manufacturer's warranty had been carried out.

But this became seen as a restrictive practice, so EU legislation in 2002 made it illegal for manufacturers to insist on cars being maintained by their franchise network to keep the guarantee intact.

It also meant that manufacturers had to make vehicle diagnostics information – crucial with increasingly sophisticated vehicles – specialist tools and updates available to independent garages and servicing centres.

Nevertheless, many car buyers still prefer main dealer franchising and also think it is the best way to protect the part exchange or second-hand value of the car, since used car buyers will usually pay a premium for a full main dealer service history on sophisticated models like the Peugeot 508, pictured above. Sceptics might argue, though, that this perceived premium is wiped out by paying higher main dealer service costs.

It is a point, but manufacturers and their main dealer networks have raised their game since the 2002 legislation.

Indeed, with car sales and profits squeezed during the economic downturn, dealers have chosen to be more competitive on servicing, cost-effective service plans, enhanced customer service and ancillaries like tyres and exhausts – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres.

They have also banked on the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

And happy service customers keep coming back, seeing the latest new car models on the showroom floor – hoping that, one day soon, they will buy again.

Fix your servicing costs to help stop the shocks

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

ONE of the biggest headaches for car-owners, particularly in tougher economic times like now, is a shock garage bill.

Fixed price deals though, cut out the shocks and make it easier to control a motoring budget.

The idea took off first with premium brands whose service costs were perceived as pricey, and taking advantage of an owner's natural reluctance to jeopardise the future value of the car by servicing outside the dealer network.

More mainstream brands have adopted the same tactic though, to counter ambitious independent and quick-fit operators, only too happy to siphon off the steady churn of servicing work.

The plans are also flexible – some are even free. Initially, they were to cover the car's warranty period – transferable in the event of the car's sale – or on an annual basis, but many brands have followed up with one-off deals or monthly instalment options, recognising many drivers like to break down their motoring budget into more manageable chunks of money.

Best advice is to ask your main dealer about the menu of schemes available and get advice on the pros and cons of each one.

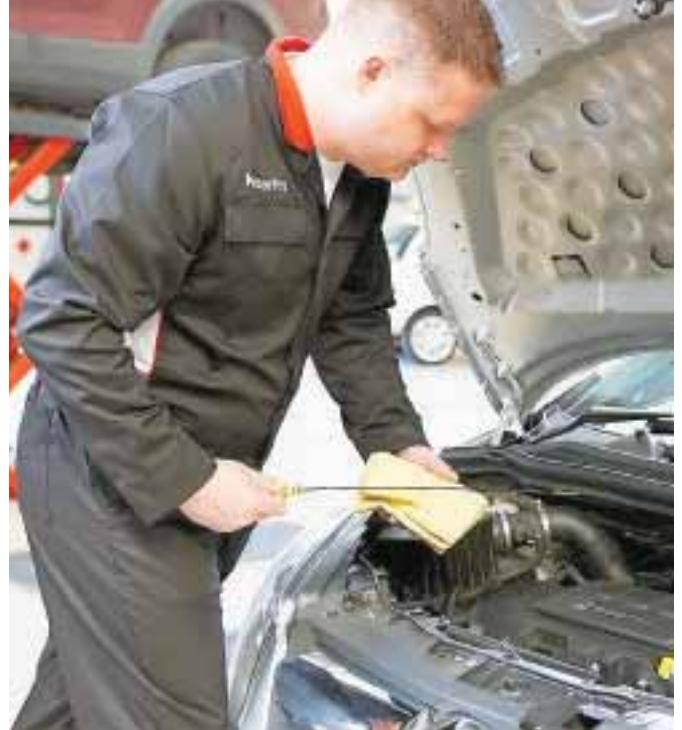

The blurb for such schemes uses the word 'policy' a lot, for that is virtually what they are: insurance policies for servicing and the vehicle warranty – a cost-effective, but necessary part of the month-by-month/annual cost of running a car.

HELP: Alfa Romeo offers service deals on its models like the Giulietta while Vauxhall has its own MasterFit technicians Vauxhall's MasterFit scheme has just launched a Fixed Price Service for only £99 on any Vauxhall vehicles aged three years and older.

Belinda Craik, service manager for Vauxhall Motors, said: "We are committed to offering our customers outstanding value for services and repairs. At £99, the Fixed Price Service complements our existing and highly competitive offers in the Vauxhall MasterFit Network, including the most recent addition of Fixed Price Repairs."

To quick-fit or not... that is the question

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THERE is always going to be a temptation to go to the local 'quick/fast-fit' centre when replacing motoring consumables.

These specialist chains have boomed as drivers try to save money on exhausts, tyres, batteries, clutches, shock absorbers and routine services, plus the annual MOT.

But main dealers have not been idle, reckoning that if car owners are still using their service bays, then they won't mind considering realistic deals on tyres and exhausts, for instance, to ensure a time-saving one-stop shop purchase.

Using the main dealer also guarantees only genuine manufacturers' parts are used, bringing the confidence of additional quality and reliability and the knowledge this will be logged on the dealer/manufacturer database.

And that same guarantee, plus realistic pricing, has also encouraged owners to have bodyshop repairs done either by the franchise's own panel beaters and paintshop or one that gets its seal of approval.

Main dealers have also borrowed from their quick-fit rivals, by offering menu pricing: this means that, like dining out, a customer can decide what he wants and knows in advance what it will cost – avoiding any motoring indigestion, when the bill is presented. Some dealers will even let you spread the cost via finance or servicing schemes covering several years.

Others may also offer a loyalty scheme with a

TECHNICAL KNOW-HOW: If your new car, like this Skoda Yeti, suddenly needs a replacement tyre or exhaust, you might find that your main dealer can be just as inexpensive as a fast-fit centre... as is evidenced by these two Mazda MX-5s getting the quick-fit treatment at a spotlessly-clean Mazda dealership tariff of cheaper prices to keep owners of older and lower value models on their books rather than see them defect to the non-franchised sector, simply because they feel their car is no longer worth paying top servicing prices for.

Another trick borrowed from the quick-fit sector is longer working hours at main dealer service centres; dealers are much more aware many customers want to drop off their car early on their way to work and then pick it up at the end of the day – a courtesy car may even be offered.

Bookings can often be made centrally too so customers living midway between two franchised dealers within the same group can pick the most convenient service slots available.

CARE AND ATTENTION:
New cars like the Citroën C3 and Hyundai i40 are more reliable and safer than ever before but still need looking after

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

MODERN cars are miles ahead of predecessors built just 15 years ago, in terms of reliability, comfort and driving pleasure.

The downside though is that keeping your car reliable, maintained and safe is now best left to the professionals.

Unfortunately, since this costs money, owners often ignore problems for too long and the servicing schedule is stretched beyond the recommended limit, perhaps endangering the occupants and certainly undermining the warranty and the provenance of the vehicle when they come to sell.

So, follow these tips:

■ Maintain the service record to the letter and

Car care is where it's at make sure the servicing book is stamped up, although some marques are switching to centralised digital records so that a car's servicing record is always available if required.

- Read the warranty document thoroughly to ensure there are no possible pitfalls to endanger your guarantee.
- Act on recalls from the manufacturer for checks or replacements, even if they do not relate specifically to safety – it will help maintain the warranty and future saleability of the car.
- Don't rely on the MOT as insurance for the car's safety and reliability, even if has just passed with flying colours – problems can arise at any time and you should get them checked as soon as possible.

- Check lights regularly for safety and legality. Get used to 'lighting up' in the garage or when you are nosed in or backed up to a wall.
- Check tyres – including the spare – monthly, including the correct pressures as listed in the handbook or the sticker often placed on the driver's side door frame. Though the legal tread depth is 1.6mm, replace at 2mm, especially in winter when icy and wet conditions compromise grip.

- Keep oil, windscreen washer, coolant, power steering, clutch and brake fluid levels topped up without over-filling, checking on level ground. Don't wait for warning lights to come on.
- Replace wiper blades. There's no point in keeping the washer topped up if blades are worn or split. But if the windscreen is covered with bugs and grease, don't expect the washer and wipers to do the job for you – use a spray and elbow grease.
- Shop around for servicing. Even if you are committed to main dealer servicing, you don't have to use the one where you bought the car – some are better on pricing and customer service than others.
